The Great White Shark

For each question, choose the correct answer.

The Great White Shark

The great white shark is thought of as a killer, but this is not really (1) True, one look is enough to confirm how frightening these creatures are. They can be anywhere between four and five metres long and have around 300 teeth (2) in rows. They can travel through the water at up to 24 kilometres an hour, speeding up when they attack. However, of the 100 or so shark attacks on humans that are (3) each year, only around a half of these are made by the great white and most of these attacks do not lead to the person losing their life. Research has shown that the shark will often carry (4) a test bite, and in many cases it has been shown they will release a human. Unfortunately, (5) to the size of the creature's mouth this can still lead to the person being (6) injured.

The Tower of London

For each question, write the correct answer.

Write one word for each gap.

The Tower of London

I hope you like the photos of our holiday. My favourites are the ones (1) the Tower of London. The big black birds you can see in one of the photos are called 'ravens'. The story goes that if ever these birds leave, the Tower will fall along with the country. (2) are always supposed to be (3) least six but the Tower keeps seven or more, just to be safe! The guide explained that it was King Charles II (4) ordered this when he was warned of the dangers of killing the birds.

They don't want the ravens to fly away so one of their wings is 'clipped'. We were told that this doesn't hurt them at all but that it stops them flying away. All the birds are given names and I was surprised (5) learn that the oldest one they've had was called Jim Crow, who lived (6) he was 44 years old!

Georgina Johnson

For each question, choose the correct answer.

Georgina Johnson writes about the mobile phone

Looking back to when I was younger in the 1980s, I can remember dreaming of two inventions I thought would change my world but were probably not likely to happen in my lifetime. One was a tiny video camera that I could carry around in my pocket and film moments whenever I had the opportunity. The other was something I could use to see and speak to people miles away. I often saw them in science fiction films, and they didn't even need to be plugged in!

I find it incredible that during my adult life these two dreams have become a reality. And not even two separate inventions. Just one phone, small enough to keep in my pocket so that I hardly know it's there. I can video call or chat to friends and relatives, catch up with the latest news, watch videos of my favourite bands, check the weather forecast or send messages. Thanks to satnav I never have to worry if I get lost when I make a journey somewhere I have never been before. I can shop as much as I want and even take a course in any subject I want ... the list goes on.

Along with the internet, the mobile phone must be the biggest change in technology ever. So why do many of us feel slightly worried about how much time we spend on the phone in our lives? It's strange that the opportunities it has offered us for communication seem to have limited the time we actually spend talking to each other. We are all used to seeing friends and families who are always looking at their screens and taking very little notice of those around them.

The mobile phone is here to stay and we have to find a way of dealing with the problems it might create. I believe these are challenges we have to solve individually rather than expecting something or someone else to come to our rescue. It's up to us to be careful about the time we spend online and remember that it's good to talk with those sitting nearby. We can still feel amazed to have such a powerful piece of technology available when we need it.

1. What does Georgina say about the 1980s?

- A She didn't have a TV.
- B Some inventions seemed a long way in the future.
- C People were always watching science fiction films.
- D She had friends who lived a long way away.

2. Georgina says that a mobile phone

- A is easy to carry.
- B can be hard to know how to use.
- C is easy to lose.
- D is helping her with her studies.

3. What changes does Georgina say the mobile phone has created?

- A We now depend on the internet.
- B It stops us seeing friends and relatives as often.
- C We communicate with people in a different way.
- D We spend more time communicating with people.

4. Georgina thinks that people who use a mobile phone

- A don't realise how powerful it can be.
- B should speak to others for help.
- C are beginning to wish it hadn't been invented.
- D are responsible for using it sensibly.

5. What would be a good introduction to this article?

A Georgina Johnson explains how her dreams have come true now the mobile phone has made her life so much easier.

B Are you spending too long on your mobile phone? Georgina Johnson warns of some of the dangers.

C One of the greatest inventions of all time or something we should be a little concerned about? Georgina Johnson gives her views on the mobile phone.

D Do you dream about what the future may be like and what technological inventions will occur? They are unlikely to come true says Georgina Johnson.

Four Statements- Questions 1–10 You are going to read an article about four teenagers' experiences of learning to surf. For questions 1–10, choose from the sections (A–D) and write the correct letter. You may choose a letter more than once.

A Nora

I was unsure what to expect from my surfing experience. When I met the others in my group they seemed friendly but I was nervous and found it hard to keep calm as I was convinced they'd all be better than me. I struggled to the water's edge, my arms hardly long enough to wrap round the board. A week later I was up on the board and surfing, not confidently, but I was proud of this achievement. I realised that if I'd taken up surfing earlier, I'd probably be riding huge waves. It was a shame but it made me determined to improve.

B Hugo

I was on holiday with my parents and surfing lessons were being advertised at the beach near where we were staying. I thought it'd be a way to get to know some people my age and decided to sign up. I'd never done water sports before so I was expecting to find surfing a real challenge. But it seems that balance is vital for surfing success. I'm quite a good gymnast and that helped so I got used to jumping on the board and standing up surprisingly quickly. I think I might have another go if I get the opportunity.

C Sylvie

I took a surfing course on a gorgeous beach with shallow water and perfect waves for beginners. So I can't say I felt nervous and I expected to be surfing in no time. However, that first morning I was in the water holding onto the board more often than I was standing on it, which was annoying. My enthusiasm left me and if my teacher hadn't pushed me to try again I'd have gone off to sunbathe. On day three I actually surfed on my first wave, which was hardly impressive but it hasn't put me off the idea of trying again.

D Mikel

I went surfing for the first time with some friends and we had an excellent and encouraging instructor. There were sharp volcanic rocks on the sea floor so we got cuts and bruises, but that didn't concern us much and by the end of the first day we'd all managed to stand up on the board even if only for a few seconds. It felt so good being part of that group and it made me try my best. But it was something I did one summer and I have no particular plan or desire to repeat the experience.

Which person says...

- they particularly enjoyed the experience of learning with other people? 1
- the support they received prevented them from giving up? 2
- they wished they'd tried the sport sooner? 3
- they felt anxious before their first lesson? 4
- they found surfing easier than they'd expected? 5
- they loved the place where they were surfing? 6
- they are unlikely to continue to surf in the future? 7
- they started surfing to make some new friends? 8
- they found it difficult to handle the equipment? 9
- they were disappointed by the slow progress they made? 10
